01. Synopsis on the education and inheritance status of Chinese medicine in Hong Kong before 1997
   .................................................................................................................................................. CHAN Wing Kwong (1)

02. The clinical experience of the Hong Kong Old Chinese Medicine Practitioner CHAN Kong Sang in the treatment of fatty liver
   .................................................................................................................................................. CHAN Lei (3)

03. Analysis on the theory of “Chronic diseases are likely associated with wind” and the application of wind herbs by Dr. ZHANG Qunxiang of Hong Kong
   .................................................................................................................................................. XIE Defu (6)

04. Discussion by Dr. WANG Huimin of Hong Kong on the clinical application of acupuncture and moxibustion in the Assisted Reproductive Technology
   .................................................................................................................................................. CHAN Kong Sang (13)

05. Analysis on the pattern differentiation and treatment methods employed in the treatment of breast cancer by Professor CHEN Bingzhong of Hong Kong
   .................................................................................................................................................. YUAN Shaoliang (15)

06. Brief analysis on the clinical experience of Professor ZHU Jianhua in the treatment of cancer using the combination of pattern and disease differentiation and the approach of assisting genuine qi and dissolving masses
   .................................................................................................................................................. XU Junwei, ZHAO Xu (18)

07. Essay by JIA Yingjie on using large dose of Radix Astragali in the treatment of malignant tumors
   .................................................................................................................................................. JIA Yingjie (20)

08. The experience of Professor ZHOU Yongming in the treatment of bone marrow suppression after chemotherapy for malignant tumors
   .................................................................................................................................................. ZHANG Fupeng, ZHAO Xiaoyan, ZHOU Yongming (22)

09. The experience of Professor QI Luguang in the differential treatment of polycystic ovary syndrome
   .................................................................................................................................................. HAN Li, LEI Xinyu, LUO Jing, QI Luguang (24)

10. The experience of Professor XIA Qinghua in the treatment of chronic pelvic inflammation
    .................................................................................................................................................. WANG Yuhong (25)

11. Three pediatric cases treated by Professor HAN Xinmin
    .................................................................................................................................................. WANG Dianyun, HAN Xinmin (27)

12. Discussion on the thinking of stomach qi protection proposed in the three yang chapters of the Treaties on Cold Attack and its clinical significance
    .................................................................................................................................................. FENG Xuegong (29)

13. The relationship between the related theories of diagnostic methods of auscultation and olfaction and
14. Exploration of the concept of Su Syndrome in the Four Manifestations medical system and its clinical significance ........................................................... LI Yanhua, KOH Byung Hee (34)

15. Research on the application of Chinese medicine theories of body constitutions for the treatment of ischemic stroke .............................................................. WANG Huixin (37)

16. Analysis of the clinical application of Chinese medicine theories of body constitutions for the treatment of hypertension ............................................................ HU Xiaozhen (39)

17. Application of the research in Chinese medicine theories of body constitutions for macular diseases ........................................................................................................ SONG Yi (41)

18. Medicine of body constitutions: Problems and counter-measures .................................. YUAN Bing (43)

20. Clinical observation on the treatment of chronic gastritis using Chinese medicine in Hong Kong ........................................................................................................ ZHANG Xuebin (49)

21. Insights on the use of charred herbs for the treatment of uterine bleeding .................. CUI Shuhua (51)

23. Literature research on the use of auricular-plaster therapy for insomnia .................................................... LEE Ching Lam Jessica, LIU Nongyu (56)

24. Clinical observation on the treatment of 60 cases of hypertension using auricular-plaster therapy ................................................................. FENG Li, ZHAO Yue, CHEN Bo (61)

25. Clinical observation on the use of combined blood-letting and fire needling for the treatment of root type of sciatic pain ........................................ XUE Jianfang, GUO Lin, WAN Huan (63)

26. Theoretical exploration and clinical application of abdominal acupuncture ................ GUO Yuanqi (64)

27. Efficacious clinical cases of treating post-herpes zoster neuralgia with blood-letting technique on Dazhui and Zhiyang points ........................................ CHEN Miaoxia (67)

28. Progress in the pharmacodynamic and pharmacological researches on Rhizome Chuanxiong ................................................................. XU Wei, YANG Junxing, XU Min, XIA Quan, et al. (70)

29. Research advances in and reflection on the treatment of childhood epilepsy with Chinese medicine
30. South Korea: Trend-setting with Eastern medicine and Korean herbs  ............... ZHAO Zhongzhen (76)